What are Dual Currency Deposits?

Dual Currency Deposits (DCD) are short-term investments that offer depositors the possibility of receiving a substantially higher interest compared to normal fixed deposits. The DCD is linked to foreign exchange movements and is highly suited for investors with assets in more than one currency, with investment plans in a foreign currency, with needs in a foreign currency or with a clear currency vision.

How does it work?

Briefly, on opening, the investor places an initial deposit amount in one currency, as a fixed term deposit with SBM, for a pre-agreed enhanced interest rate that will be paid at maturity. The predetermined tenor / time horizon may range from one week to one year. A conversion rate, known as the “Strike Rate” will also be pre-specified. At maturity, the currency for the repayment of capital and interest will then depend on whether the rate agreed (Strike Rate) is greater or below the prevailing spot.

Example:

Customer has EUR 100,000, earning 0% (or even negative) interest on normal deposits. Current EUR/USD rate is at 1.12. Customer can enter into a one-month DCD with a conversion rate, similar to the prevailing EUR/USD rate, at 1.12. Interest rate achievable is 5.00 % p.a.
